Zack Bombatch is a reassuring presence to his clients, always taking the time to explain difficult and complex legal issues in a comprehensive, yet easy to digest manner. Labor and employment law is the primary focus for Zack's practice, and he helps clients in a variety of industries navigate the regulatory and statutory framework. While Zack is comfortable in the courtroom, he enjoys helping clients avoid potentially costly and disruptive litigation. Zack counsels clients on the potential domino effects that employment actions and policies can have on both business operations and employee morale, making him a trusted advisor.

Zack is actively assisting employers with guidance on how to navigate the medical marijuana/cannabis laws in Pennsylvania and the impact on not only employment law, but also compliance with industry specific safety regulations.

Zack is active in the higher education practice as well, counseling public and private colleges and universities on best practices related to Title IX and the portion of the Pennsylvania criminal code related to hazing.
